And for its soft and sole uply,
And for its soft and sole uply,
And sole its soft and sole uply,
And yet deliver under the waters sist.
Into the syst who heard,—
For they sold of a nose loving heart,
I as a visice like that of a hird;
Of a heart that loved, shouch it loved in vain,—
A prieries, and just of a hird,—
And had an early doon,
Like trees that never gow to frait,
And souly shed their bloom;—
Constitution of the sole o A spirit tast and lost is song,—

A joy that could not all he lost,
A comfort in despair:—

And the Devil fled, like a lated ghost And the Devil fled, like a lated phost

WE'RE BRITHREN A'. A happy fit hame this auld world wad be,
If men, when they're here, could make shift to agree,
And ilk said to his neebor in cottage and ha',
Come gi'e me your hand—we are brithren a'.

I ken na why, one with anither held fight, When to 'gree wad mak a body coste and right; When man meets wi' man, 't is the best way ava To say, "G!'e me four hand—we're brithren at."

My coat is a coarse one, an' yours may be fine, And I mawn drink water while you may drink wise, But we baith ha'e a leal heart, unspotted to shaw. Sae gi'e me your hand—we are brithren a'.

The knave ye wad scorn, the unfaithful deride, Ye wad stan' like a rock wi' the truth on your Sae wad I, an' naught else wad I value a straw; So gi'e me your hand—we are brithren s'.

Ye wad seem to do fausely by woman or man;
I hand by the right ay, as well as I can;
We are ane in our joys, our affections, and a';
Come gi'e me your hand—we are brithren a'.

We have the same simmer day sunny an' fhir;
Hamel ob, how we luve it, and all that are there!
Frac the pure air o' Heaven the same life we draw,
Come gi'e me your hand—we are brithren a'.

Frail, shakin' suld Ageswill sune come o'er ua haith, An' creepin' atang at his back will be Death; Syne into the same mitter yird we will fa', Come gi'e me your hand—we are brithern a'.
